SHOALS CALLED KEY TO POWER SITUATION

STAHLMAN DECLARES PUBLIC IS PROTECTED

STORE BUILDINGS ON SECOND AVENUE ARE SOLD BYNUM-HARRIS

Courtland People Buy 2-Story Structure in Business Area

CONSIDERATION IS NOT MADE PUBLIC

Purchasers Reported to Have Bought for an Investment

The two store buildings on Second avenue, occupied by Crane's Clothes Shop and Garnett's have been sold by Asbury Malone to H. D. Bynum and R. N. Harris of Courtland.

The consideration was not made public but the property is said to have netted about $600 a front foot. The property includes two stores, 25 feet in width, with apartments on the upper floors, and is located in the heart of the business district.

The sale of the buildings was made by Otto Moebe, well known local realtor, in collaboration with Allison and Woods who had charge of the structures.

The new purchasers are much interested in the growth and development of this community and recently Mr. Bynum has made many purchases of local real estate. His faith in the future of the Twin Cities is unbounded and he believes his investments here, in future years, will prove very successful.

The local real estate market which up to a few weeks ago was more or less inactive, is becoming very active again and the transfers of other business property within the next thirty days is rumored. It is said that several other out-of-town investors are looking over prospective investments here.

NEGRO IS FATALLY INJURED BY TRAIN

The body of Larry Craig, a negro, is at a local undertaker to be prepared for burial. Craig is said to have been from Birmingham. He died about 6:55 o'clock this morning following the crushing of both his lower limbs by a late passenger train in the Louisville and Nashville shop yards about 2 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The negro was picked up and rushed to the office of a local physician, where it was the intention to amputate his legs. But as the negro never rallied sufficiently to attempt such a serious operation none was performed. When it was seen no reaction set up following the accident, hope for the recovery of the negro was given up. Mayor William A. Britain and others were summoned to the scene of the accident soon after it occurred. It was said that north bound train No. 8 of the Louisville and Nashville railroad was the one that passed over the negro. The accident occurred near the local yard office of the railroad. He gave his age as 29, said he was single and that his home address was 1718, Avenue D, Birmingham.

MUCH INTEREST IN REVIVAL SERVICES

The services of usual interest with a large and attentive congregation were held at the First Christian church last night.

The opening prayer was led by Rev. Robert Edward of the Y. M. C. A.

A special selection of music was rendered by Mrs. Frank Morrow.

The subject of the speaker, Noble R. Edwards, was "Zacheus up a tree."

He brought out the following ideas: Zacheus was small of stature yet wanted to see Jesus and climbed the tree.

"When a man wants to see Jesus he must put himself in the proper attitude."

"The presence of Christ brought joy to the home of Zacheus and it will bring joy to any home."

"He forgot his business, his money and things of the world and turned his thoughts to Jesus of Nazareth."

"Men are working creatures and are more contented and happier when busy. Our country is in a worse condition when most of the people are idle."

"When a Christian is busy he is happy."

"When Jesus enters a heart, that heart becomes larger. Zacheus said he would give one half of his possessions to the poor or if I have wronged any one I will restore four fold."

"The presence of Jesus makes a man honest."

MRS. HAMON IS NOT QUESTIONED TODAY

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 29—Mrs. Jake L. Hamon, widow of the Oklahoma oil man, and republican politician, whose name has been linked with many unusual stories about political financing in 1920, had a fleeting day before the senate oil committee. She was not asked a single question and was excused after half an hour's waiting on the witness stand, while committee senators wrangled and finally completely disagreed as to who was responsible for her summons to Washington.

A visible stir swept over the committee room when she swept up to the committee table, dressed in a flowing black dress and carrying in her hand a lillie.

There began one of the bitterest personal rows that has characterized the sessions of the oil committee.

Senator Spencer, republican, Missouri, objected before hand to the admission of her testimony.

MISSISSIPPI STILL FAVORS FORD'S BID IS BELIEF OF EDITOR

R. L. Brown Says Rank and File Are For Detroit Man

PEOPLE ARE WITH PAT HARRISON

Few Realize the Great Possibilities of Development

"Not only is the magnitude of the possibilities of Muscle Shoals the most talked of subject in all North Alabama and Tennessee, as I have found during the past few days," said R. L. Brown, editor of three weekly newspapers in Mississippi, secretary of the Mississippi Press Association and secretary of the Mississippi state senate, and a resident of Sumner, Miss., who is spending this week with friends and relatives in Decatur, "but the Muscle Shoals proposition is one of vital interest to the entire State of Mississippi, from the Gulf Coast to the Tennessee line."

"Those who hear the Muscle Shoals proposition discussed are necessarily impressed with the almost unanimous sentiment of the people of every class that the proposition of Henry Ford should be accepted by the Government for the operation of the wonderful latent resources which are now in the course of development."

"I have been asked about the recent opposition which has developed in certain sections of Mississippi against the Ford offer. While I know little about this opposition, except that it seems to be emanating from individuals, who have been interested by other people who have presented offers to the government, I believe the large majority of the people of Mississippi, in every section, heartily favor the Ford proposition, believing that more economical and broader development of the huge resources at Muscle Shoals would be the result with the wonderful administrative and developing powers of the Ford organization."

"I believe the sentiment in Mississippi is represented by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, who is one of the strongest advocates of the Ford offer in the United States Senate. Senator Harrison's advocacy of the Ford proposition comes after mature study of the situation, as it would affect his native state, as well as its effect on the entire South and its nation. His course in advocating and defending the Ford proposition is meeting with hearty approval of his constituency in Mississippi and his leadership and ability in the senate is regarded as a mighty factor in the fight for control of Muscle Shoals."

"Of course, there are comparatively few people in Mississippi, as well as in other states, who really realize the magnitude of Muscle Shoals. Seemingly it is as only a local matter, affecting only the territory immediately adjacent to the Shoals. Another indication of the sentiment in Mississippi was manifested by a concurrent resolution, originating in the Mississippi senate and passing both branches of the legislature by good majorities, memorializing congress on the Muscle Shoals proposition. In this concurrent resolution, the language was plainly in favor of the Ford proposition, notwithstanding the delegation which went to Washington in February to appear before the Agriculture committee, and which committee was almost convinced by the logic of Pat Harrison that the Ford proposition was the one which would be the best for the State."

Arguments Feature Day As Senators Continue To Consider Shoals Offers

COOLIDGE DOESN'T THINK FAVOR OF HENRY FORD "IS FOR SALE"

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 29—Categorical denial was made by President Coolidge in a statement that he "was trying to deliver Muscle Shoals to Henry Ford, or to any one else."

The President, in his statement, said he did not think "Mr. Ford's favor was for sale" and that the question of disposition of Muscle Shoals ought to be decided on its merits.

The President's statement was issued after a telegram sent by J. Martin Miller, a Ford representative here, to Ford representatives in Michigan, had been produced at the Senate Muscle Shoals hearing.

This telegram quoted the President as saying last October he was trying to deliver the Muscle Shoals properties to Ford.

"I have no other method of dealing with it," Mr. Coolidge said with reference to the Shoals question. "The Congress should have none."

The President said his position on Muscle Shoals is fully stated in his message to Congress delivered December 6.

CHURCH MEMBERS PLAN TO ERECT TABERNACLE AT ONCE

The men of the First Christian church at a recent meeting raised enough money to insure the erection of a Sunday School tabernacle with the men themselves contributing the labor for its erection. The new building is expected to be ready for occupancy by Sunday. It will stand close against the present church building and will accommodate about 100 men. The movement to erect the tabernacle was made necessary by the increase in the attendance of the Men's Bible class which meets every Sunday morning at 9:45 o'clock. It is planned to make the new tabernacle sufficiently strong to stand for many years although it is to be of a temporary character. It was decided to erect the new building so, as the congregation of the First Christian church is planning the erection of a new brick and stone church to take the place of the present frame structure. A fund of $10,000 is now held by officials of the church for the erection of the new church.

CENTRAL METHODIST CHURCH TO EMPLOY AN ASSISTANT PASTOR

Dr. James D. Hunter, pastor of the Central Methodist church, is now in touch with the general boards of the Southern Methodist church in an effort to secure an assistant in his work as pastor. Dr. Hunter, by unanimous vote of his board of stewards, at a special meeting of that body Monday night at the Central Methodist church, was authorized to secure an assistant of his own choosing, stated B. A. Turner, chairman of the publicly committee of the Central Methodist church. Mr. Turner declared that his church was determined to do a real service, an extensive service, and also in view of the fact that all churches of 1,000 members generally have assistants to their pastors, that since the Central Methodist had about 1,300 it was time that Dr. Hunter be allowed an assistant.

It was stated that the assistant would be expected to work in the Sunday school among the children of the church and with the employed women of this community.

It was stated by Mr. Turner that second only in importance to the employment of an assistant to Dr. Hunter was the determination of the evangelistic committee, as organized to support the recent revival efforts of his church, to remain organized and to carry on the same kind of work it had been doing. One project of this committee is to form a men's club of the Central M. E. church, and that club is expected to do the same kind of work among the men that the assistant pastor is expected to do among the Sunday school students and the employed women.

Then Dr. James D. Hunter was asked about the new prospects for his church he stated he felt elated and very happy over the prompt action of the board of stewards, in granting the request of the evangelistic committee of the church, to employ an assistant to the pastor.

"The Central Methodist church has caught a real vision" declared Dr. Hunter. "It's members see where they can serve the entire community and they propose to undertake that service with enthusiasm. I have never seen such an enthusiastic and generous response." Dr. Hunter stated he hoped to secure his assistant at once.

The condition of E. N. Penick, who is undergoing treatment at the Benevolent hospital following the severe injury he received in an automobile accident Sunday, was reported as unchanged this afternoon. Mrs. Penick who was with her husband at the time of the accident, and who received some injuries was reported this afternoon as making rapid progress toward recovery.

The many friends of Mr. Penick have manifested deep concern for his recovery. Every medical attention is being given him, and hope is held out for his recovery.

FORD'S CONTRACT CALLED CARELESS

Disagrees With Heflin That U. S. Left the Shoals for Junk

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 29—Arguments favoring and opposing acceptance of Henry Ford's bid for Muscle Shoals were heard at today's session of the senate-agriculture committee. Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, opposed the offer and Major E. B. Stahlman, publisher of The Nashville Banner appeared as a defender of the Ford bid, urging the committee not to demand changes in the bid that would make Ford refuse to accept it and not to do the thing the power companies "want you to do."

The publisher insisted that the Ford bid protected the public and should be accepted, adding that additional protective legislation would be enacted if found necessary.

He charged that Dan McGugin, a recent witness, who opposed the Ford bid as a representative of the Tennessee Manufacturer's Association, did not represent the manufacturers but was "a hireling of the power companies."

Governor Pinchot declared Muscle Shoals was the key to the industrial and agricultural development of the South and that the Ford bid would "hamstring" the South. He described the Ford bid as "a careless contract" with no penalty for forfeiture or guarantee of any sort.

"Ford could use all the power for himself, if he chose," Pinchot said, "and pay nothing for the power he uses and there is no check on the price he could charge consumers of power."

The governor declared the Ford bid did not do justice to the farmers on the question of fertilizer and that it was absolutely contrary to the Roosevelt policy as set forth in the federal waterpower act.

Major Stahlman will continue his testimony tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, April 29—Gifford Pinchot, governor of Pennsylvania, told the senate agriculture committee today that Muscle Shoals is the key to the power situation in the southeast and that it is the second greatest power plant in the United States.

"In my opinion Muscle Shoals should be handled, not from a power standpoint, but from a social standpoint," he said.

"It seems to me the question is not so much the individual bid, but the procedure to be followed. We should know exactly what we want to accomplish. Henry Ford's bid does not guarantee but that it will build up a great industrial center at Muscle Shoals."

"It will hamstring the South as the great waterpower composes the key to the industrial and agricultural future of the whole great southeastern plain."

"I see no reason in the world why so careless a form of contract as the Ford bid should be accepted," the governor continued. "There is no penalty for forfeit and no guarantee of any sort. I would not accept this contract at all, but first find out what the company wants. What possible objection could there be to making certain

A DAILY PRAYER—We pray Thee to give us courage in the Valley of Humility and strength with which to climb the Hill of Difficulty.

Whatever the outcome of the new wrangle in the Muscle Shoals hearing is, the net result will be that most people in the Tennessee Valley will think more of Coolidge and less of Norris.

Father's pocketbook isn't in good shape yet. The Christmas bills finally paid, then Easter, now graduation time is just around the corner.

Secretary Weeks has a brand of optimism which, under certain conditions, apparently never is dampened. He still is looking for that "better offer" for Muscle Shoals. He has been waiting quite a long time now.

The closer relationship of the farmers and the newspaper publications of the state is evidenced strongly by the plan of F. G. Stephens, president of the Alabama Press Association, to have the editors of Alabama meet at given points, with representatives of the farmers extension services.

The sole object of the meetings is to devise means whereby the newspapers may better reach the farmers with the message of farming experts. Editors do not attempt to qualify as expert farmers, most of them probably would not attempt to qualify even as poor farmers. The limited agricultural education most of them possess comes only from contact with the real tillers and by reading. Yet, if the doctrine of better farming is to be preached throughout Alabama, it remains for the newspapers to undertake the task. The answer to what otherwise might be a perplexing problem is readily seen. Those who know will furnish the copy for the newspapers, who, in turn, will pass it on to its farmer-readers.

How best to prepare this copy, how to supply it to the press, the score of little incidental details incident to the preparation and actual publication of material, will be the subject of the forthcoming conferences. The potential benefits are great.

Perhaps many of those in other states who protest the leasing of Muscle Shoals to Henry Ford in the belief that it will deprive them of electric current do not know that there is a radius of efficiency beyond which electricity from any given center may not be profitably distributed. Perhaps also they do not know that there are many other water power sites only awaiting private enterprise to be made to furnish a total of power far greater than that to be developed at Muscle Shoals. Those localities distant from Muscle Shoals will, therefore, not be directly affected from a hydro-electric standpoint by whatever disposition is made of the Shoals. Furthermore, since inferences seem to be in order, is it not more logical to infer that Ford will distribute and sell his surplus power than that he will not do so? What else will he do with the power in excess of his own uses?

What those living at a distance from Muscle Shoals should demand, is that the power be kept intact and available for that basic purpose for which it was first intended, namely, for the production of explosives in time of war. Why was Muscle Shoals chosen above all other sites for the location of the government nitrate plants? For two primary reasons. The first was that it is located inland far enough to be reasonably safe from attack by external enemies. The second is that it has adequate power potentiality for a tremendous emergency output. There are the secondary considerations of accessibility and good transportation connections with the rest of the country and with the seaboard.

Mississippi, being a foremost agricultural state, is doubly interested in the production of fertilizers at a lower cost than at present, and in the prospect of a new market for farm products that will be developed by a new industrial expansion. There are other states that have the same intimate interest in the development of industry and the resources contiguous to Muscle Shoals in the Tennessee Valley.—Age-Herald.

Skeptical countries of the old world which saw in the very sincerity of those who participated in America's tragic war of the 60's new proof of the mutability of republics, must have watched with wonder, in the years that have passed since Lee's surrender, the reuniting of a people in bonds apparently all the deeper that they were sealed with blood.

Once the breach began to heal, the veterans of the Confederacy were among the first to offer service in every time of national danger while they themselves as well as their sons and grandsons have shared with the North in the ardors and responsibilities of government. By share and share alike in the World war, the reconciliation was complete and North and South were one.

But even with all this, the recent act of Congress authorizing the issuance of five million silver half-dollar pieces in commemoration of the Southern heroes of the Stone Mountain Memorial is an official recognition of a so-called rebel foe such as has never perhaps been paralleled in history.

That a government should issue a coin bearing on one side the likeness of a man once called an arch-rebel against that very government, together with the two generals who most aided him in defying its power to bring him back to it, is a gesture of amity and reunion almost without precedent.

Yet this is what has been authorized by Congress, and that by a unanimous vote, together with the President's unhesitating signature of approval.

By such authorization the largest number of special coins ever issued by this government will be put into circulation with this fifty-cent piece bearing on its obverse, the profile of Jefferson Davis, Robert E. Lee, and Stonewall Jackson as they are being carved on the immemorial rock of Stone Mountain, with the face of President Harding on the reverse.

With the co-operation of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, the Stone Mountain Memorial is to handle the entire issue of the coin, on the basis of a dollar value on each, with two million five hundred dollars thus in profit to the association's treasury, a sum that will go far toward finishing the colossal work.

That the coin will make a popular souvenir goes without saying. There will hardly be a state in the Union where people will not be interested in so unique piece of money and pleased to own and keep it as a token of the undying brotherhood and sympathy that makes our broad land one.

Here in the South we take this act of something far more significant than a mere expression of good will that let by-gones be by-gones to the extent of joining with one-time enemies in commemorating a cause called lost. A gesture like this comes from the depths of an understanding by which the people on each side of the once bitter contest now see not only the deep loyalty and patriotism by which their opponents were animated, but that in each case there were sincere and incontrovertible reasons for such faith. It has been proved by the years that lie between Fort Sumpter and our present-day, that there were principles on both sides of the old conflict that are parts of the very fibre and fabric of our government, built into it from its foundations, but not fully understood in their inseparable joint-relationship until after our people's vision has been washed clear by the blood of a great war.

What our armies gave overseas in the World war was a united service with sons and grandsons of the men of the 60's fighting side by side.

The South can furnish no more unanswerable evidence of her allegiance to Old Glory than that she sent her sons to die for it.

The North's answer to such proof of love and loyalty is a deeper understanding of the patriotism of the men who followed Lee. Among many evidences of such understanding, the issuing of the Stone Mountain Memorial coin is an expression of the broad and open-minded spirit of kinship that makes our great country what it is.—Nashville Tennessean.

SALES AGAIN SET GREATER RECORD

Retail Deliveries by Dodge Brothers Dealers for Week Ending April 19 Reach Total of 6376.

New High Mark Established by Three Successive Weeks; New Type Car Exceedingly Popular

For the third successive week Dodge Brothers dealers have broken all previous retail delivery records.

During the week ending April 19th, 5694 cars were delivered to purchasers. This was more than 100 in excess of the greatest previous week's business in Dodge Brothers history. This record, however, was of great duration as the very next week saw the delivery of 6106 cars at retail.

And now it is disclosed by official figures from the factory that the week ending April 19th sets still another and much greater record, with 6576 deliveries to customers.

In neither case do these figures include cars delivered to purchasers in foreign countries.

The consistency with which Dodge Brothers business continues to mount is cited by factory officials as an indication of the public's widespread and emphatic endorsement of the unusual value in the new line of Dodge Brothers motor cars. Week after week and month after month, since the quantity production was attained on the new type, new records have been established.

Every week in this period has exceeded in volume of business the corresponding week of any previous year.

NEW SCHEDULE OF TAXES PROPOSED

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 29—A substitute sur-tax schedule for the Mellon rate, calling for a maximum of 37, instead of 25 per cent, was made public today by Senator McCormick, republican, Illinois, who has been working out a compromise aimed to unite republicans against the almost solid stand of the democrats for their 40 per cent maximum plan.

call for a maximum of 37 per cent, this rate would be applied only to incomes of $1,000,000 and more, the maximum rate in the present law being 50 per cent and applies to all incomes over $200,000.

The Mellon plan would make the maximum 25 per cent on all incomes over $100,000 and the Simmons democratic scheme would call for a maximum rate of 40 per cent, applicable to all incomes over $500,000.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE
Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

Of Whom Does Dicky Remind Mrs. Bird?

"YOU'RE sure that car is in shape for a trip?"

My temperamental husband enjoys motoring as well as anyone I know, but he never starts upon any trip without lugubrious prophecies concerning the breakdowns he expects to meet.

It brought us to Flushing without any trouble. I replied placidly, "and Mrs. Bird said she would have the garage man look it over and have it ready for me whenever I came for it."

Dicky kicked gloomily at the suitcase he had packed so hurriedly in his anger the night before, and which—mildly put—was a hodge-podge of the greater space of the double seat we had been lucky enough to get in the morning train bound for Flushing.

"It'll be a fine joke if anything is the matter with the car," he said, "with these blasted things to lug around."

"Why not check them at the station while we taxi down to Mrs. Bird's?" I meekly suggested.

"And travel about four miles out of our way?" he demanded. "You ought to qualify as an efficiency expert. What's the matter with taking them down there with us in the taxi? They don't charge any more for luggage."

"Do You Mind?"

I permitted myself a tiny smile which I took care Dicky should not see. I had suggested taking the suitcases with us, he promptly would have found some objection, for his mood was eminently a capricious one.

From the Flushing station a taxi rapidly whisked us and our luggage to Mrs. Bird's home. The big shabby old house was situated against a hill and was built in the winter sunlight, and my artist husband looked at it with quickened interest.

"I'd like to see this in summer," he commented, when the taxi had deposited us upon the veranda. "But where are all these underground tunnels and other movie stunt settings?"

"Hush!" I cautioned, too late, for he had not seen the door open as I had, and Mrs. Bird, in the doorway, heard the conclusion of his sentence.

I introduced them hastily, with a distinct little quiver, for little Mrs. Bird's face was unsmiling, and her manner gave me to understand that she thought me a most glib person to have confided the secrets of her house even to my husband.

But Dicky's charm, when he chooses to exercise it, is something to watch with interest and admiration. It was not five minutes before our tiny chateau had thawed perceptibly and was herself conducting him through the basement garage at the back of the lot from which the night before she had hurried the Braithwaites and the Harrison children.

"Do you mind if I run over to your hills?" he asked her smiling. "I'd like to get the view of the bay."

What Madge Wished.

"Go anywhere you like," she said, answering his smile, and as he walked swiftly away she watched his little well-knit figure for a second or two before turning to me.

"Your husband is very much of a boy, isn't he?" she asked, but it was one of the questions which I knew required no answer. Her thoughts were far away from either Dicky or me. I knew that by the retrospective look in her eyes, and her next words were a commonplace comment upon the beauty of the morning.

"He reminds me so much—" she began, but the sentence was never finished. She was back again in whatever mists of memory the meeting of Dicky had brought to her, and her next words were a commonplace comment upon the beauty of the morning.

It was not my first experience of the kind. Almost every middle-aged and elderly woman of my acquaintance tells me that my husband "reminds her of someone."

There is something about these old lavender-wrapped stories that appeals to me. I enjoy listening to them, and feel vaguely flattered that my own lover husband so epitomizes romance to fading eyes.

What a wonderful thing it would be for me if I could transfer a part of this peaceful philosophy to my contemplation of the similar havoc which my handsome husband often creates in younger feminine hearts!

FEMINISMS
By Annette Bradshaw

THERE'S LITTLE DIFFERENCE 'TWEEN EVENING AND NIGHT MODES NOW

MAYBELLE—Oh, I'm so glad you like this nightie. Yes, it is the very latest robe du nuit, but I wasn't extravagant, dear! I happened to discover one of Mama's lovely old evening gowns and I annexed the pattern for my own slumber-dress. But I'll have to go it alone for a raised waistline step-in chemise. They're all the rage right now!

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Fairy Tales and Living

THEY brought a herd of snow-white deer into San Francisco the other day—brought them on a boat up from Nicaragua.

Didn't it make you feel like little Goody-Two-Shoes or the Sleeping Beauty come to life just to read about them?

Snow-white deer and snow-white swans and snow-white horses and little dogs as white as snow with eyes like burning coals and snow-white cats with emerald eyes—what apple tree did you sit up in when you used to read about these things long and long ago?

You and little sister—and little brother used to laugh at you for liking fairy stories. But don't you remember the time you caught him up in the hay-loft reading the Arabian Nights, himself, and for weeks after that he wandered around looking for a large flat stone with a ring in it so he could lift it and go down, down, down the broad marble steps into a wonderful palace built under the earth?

I wonder if the children know all the old fairy tales nowadays? What a lot they miss, if they don't!

What Charms They Wove!

There was the girl who met the soldier with the tinder-box and all the things that happened to her on that windy day, when she and the soldier went down the long flight of steps into the deep earth and found the great chests of gold and silver and pearls and diamonds and saw the dog who guarded them—the dog with the eyes as big as the round tower at Copenhagen—don't you remember?

And the three young princes who shot the arrow into the air and wherever it fell they had to follow—what a paradise he found, the youngest prince—and the garden with the singing fountain and the talking bird and all sorts of wonders. Little Red Riding Hood and Little Boy Blue—why they were like the boy and girl next door, weren't they, in their red cloak and blue clothes?

But I liked best of all the story of the Three Mermaids who lived at the bottom of the sea with their old grandmother, who taught them how to braid their hair with sea shells and hang their white necks round about with hoops of pearls and strands of coral, and then she taught them what to sing when they rose to the top of the water, and the great ship went by and all the sailors leaped over the rail and said to each other:

"Tis a fair wind truly, and the scent of flowers is in the air; we must be coming near to land."

And the sailors never knew that the fair wind they spoke of was the singing of the Three Little Mermaids riding on the waves with their arms about each other's necks and all their milky pearls and rose-hued corals floating in the waves like so much seaweed.

What charms they wove, the old masters, when they told us of mermaids and water kelpies and woodsprites and leprechauns! I never see a grove of beautiful trees without wondering at what hour of the enchanted night the woodsprite knocked upon the door of the rugged bark and let out in imprisoned spirit of the trees.

I never see a still pool, cool in the shade, but what I wish I could creep quietly to the edge of it some moonlight night and watch the little water kelpies playing together in the moonshine.

Don't You Wish—

There was always a little stupid boy whose brothers and sisters laughed at him, or a homely, freckled little girl who was not much admired in these fairy stories, and when you read how sad they were and how forlorn, it didn't worry you a bit, because you knew that somewhere the stupid little boy would meet a fairy godmother and she would show him the way to the beautiful princess and the pot of gold.

And the ugly little girl that never had anything but rags to wear—ah, that was the least of your troubles, for well you understood that before the tale was ended she would be a princess with fair hair in a cascade of gold to the hem of her satin robe and she checked with a bridle of pearls and sapphires.

The wicked were always punished, the good were always rewarded in the dear old fairy tales.

Don't you wish you had a wand right now, a magic wand, and could wave it and make all the poor and all the lonely and all the forsaken rich and happy and beloved—ah, that would be a fairy tale, indeed!

YOUR HEALTH

Beware the "Anopheles" and You'll Avoid Malaria

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

SPRING and early Summer—with the changing weather of these periods—are critical times for those persons who suffer from malaria.

The history of malaria is very interesting. In 1753 a treatise was written by Torti in which he described this disease. It was believed to be caused by the putrefied air of swampy places. So they took the Italian word "mal," meaning bad, plus the word "aria," or air, and called this affection "malaria."

In the fifth century Hippocrates had referred to this disease as tertian, or quartan fever, indicating its return every third or fourth day. He isolated it from other fevers by proving it responded to quinine—"anchona," as the drug is known.

Science in its progress has found that the malarial infection is carried by the mosquito. The anopheles is the particular enemy. This is not the mosquito usually found in the Summer. You can distinguish anopheles from the common mosquito by its attitude of body. It rests with the body at right angles to the surface, as if sticking its hips into the air.

No matter what type of malaria you may have, the onset is usually the same. It begins with a chill, usually very sudden. This chill may be slight or it may be so severe as to cause a severe shaking of the entire body. The teeth chatter, the lips are blue and it is almost impossible to warm the sufferer.

This is followed by fever and by profuse sweating. In children this stage may be accompanied by convulsions. Usually during the attack there are headache, nausea, redness of the eyes, cold sores and of course increase in pulse and respiration.

As I have said, these attacks occur every second, third, or fourth day or even every twenty-four hours. Quinine is the remedy for use in malaria. The doctor will regulate the amount to be taken.

Any swampy places or places where water is stagnant should be drained to prevent the breeding of mosquitoes.

What Galileo Did to Give Us the Telescope.

WHEN Galileo put a long tube to his right eye and brought the heavens thousands of miles nearer the earth, he made a contribution to science which causes him to rank with the great discoverers of all time.

This Italian astronomer and scientist is best known to fame as the man who recanted, in the face of the Roman Inquisition, the theory that the world moves around the sun. But this was not his discovery, and he never claimed it. Copernicus discovered the existence of the solar system and the movement of the earth. Galileo had become converted to it by his discovery of new heavenly bodies through his telescope. And being wise in his own generation, he did not consider the theory of heliocentrism a scientific theory worth bringing his own existence to an unpleasant end at the hands of the Inquisition.

Those were times when the discoveries of the ancient civilizations had been forgotten. The scientific minds of the sixteenth century were blindly groping for many facts that were common knowledge to the Assyrians, the Egyptians, the Greeks and the Romans.

The Church relied literally and strictly upon the Scriptures and ing the size of objects, and his brilliant mind saw the practicability of it. He spent a night meditating upon the principles of refraction and next day constructed a machine that magnified three-fold. He improved upon this until he was able to magnify thirty-two times the size of the original object. His simple principles are still employed in the opera glasses of today.

Galileo now became a manufacturer of telescopes. He made them with his own hands and was soon selling them to scientists in all sections of Europe.

Scientific men everywhere began to study the heavens through the new glasses, but it was Galileo himself who made the most important astronomical discoveries of his generation. He discovered the satellites of Jupiter in 1610 and during the next year the rings of Saturn and the spots on the sun, though as regards sun spots, a German astronomer is claimed to have previously located them.

Galileo was born in 1564 and died in 1642. When we consider how limited and fragmentary was the knowledge of Galileo's time we can marvel at the mighty inventive brain of this medieval philosopher, scientist and astronomer.

Diary of a Fashion Model
By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Stunning Frock for Street Wear.

YESTERDAY I went to a fashion show at one of the smart shops.

This house does less individual designing than Madame. It usually carries a large number of good French models and its clients order from these.

A client who also comes to Madame's had given Haidee and me her tickets to the fashion opening at the other firm.

"Thought you might be interested in seeing what they are showing," she said.

"Indeed, we would," I assured her. Madame said as long as we were not particularly busy that afternoon she would be glad to have us go.

"I like to know just what type of things the other houses are showing," she said.

"We are so rained off eye that we can carry away impressions as clearly as if they were sketched in black and white," Haidee assured her.

"Away with you then," Madame ordered.

"As long as you can always be sure that we will like your things best I think it's very well to let us do a little comparing," I told Madame, as we sallied forth.

The fashion show was on the large second floor of the building.

It was managed differently from our openings. At Madame's only one manikin parades at a time, and here there were several on the floor at once, but they walked around more slowly.

We watched many frocks go by. There were tub-silks and summery voiles and there was a goodly sprinkling of cloth street dresses. But for a long time we were not particularly impressed.

Then a manikin came out and we both approved at once.

"A perfectly stunning street frock!" Haidee said.

"I agree," I told her.

"Gray twill," she whispered, as the manikin walked close by our chairs.

"Unusual trimming made of folds of the material," I remarked.

"Is the scarf attached?" Haidee asked the model.

"Yes, it's attached to the neck at the back and may be worn thrown over the shoulder or with both ends hanging in front," she informed us.

"If she only knew how well we know that item," I said to Haidee, with a giggle.

"Well, it's nice to have people unaware that we're manikins for once," Haidee returned. "I like to be looked upon as a prospective purchaser."

"The plainness of that frock is stunning," I told her. "I like the plain neck, and everything about it."

"And one is positively undressed without a scarf this season in Paris," Haidee added.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young married man. My wife and I had a quarrel and I left her. How can I win my wife's love so that we can live happily together again?

I love her still. I did all that I could to make her happy when I was with her.

H. You have done a very wrong thing in leaving your wife B. H. There is just one way to win her love again, and that is to go to her, beg her forgiveness for your hastiness, show her that you love her, and—well, just court her all over again. Be married and don't change.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

Why Not Create Your Own Reference Library at Little Cost?

EVERYONE has or should have a hobby. We are naturally anxious to own all the books possible on this subject in which books cost money and many of us do not feel justified in spending much money on what we or others may call a whim. Of course, the libraries are always stocked with books bearing on almost any subject, but we may be busy persons and night may be the only time we have in which to consult the books. At night we are likely to meet with obstacles such as lack of time, great distance, bad weather and social obligations to prevent trips to the library. So it is obvious that if we are to run our hobby to earth we must have our own reference library.

Did you ever realize the cost of news-gathering? Do you know what your Sunday and daily papers cost their makers? Without compunction, the papers are thrown away with a thought of making formation. The paper is a thing of a day, the magazine is at hand the better part of a month. How few of us realize what valuable things we pass by with but a casual glance.

A long pair of shears and a discerning mind are all that are needed with which to clip understanding. A jar of paste and a scrap book of convenient size take care of the product. Once the habit is formed, it is astonishing what can be done. An hour now and then spent in looking over newspaper files in the library will show us which papers own hobby. The same is true of magazines. We then have a series of publications to watch. Soon the material we want will begin to come to our attention. Large manila envelopes will do for a short time to house the clippings before they begin to assume scrapbook proportions. Though we are quite convinced that the hobby is peculiarly our own, it is wonderful from how many different angles it may be seen by different writers. These views give us a better, and stronger grip on our subject and give clippings great value for us.

The woman who cooks and is interested in the subject may clip many things that will be of use in her work. But there is one word of advice she should heed. That is, clip, then test before adding a recipe to your collection. It may be good or it may be incomplete. After a trial you will know just what it is. Then if you think it worthy of perpetuation, add it to your collection.

The woman who is interested in interior decoration may get valuable hints on materials, color combining and curtain hanging. Clip these suggestions and put them in an envelope or scrap book now, else need them they will be gone. How to buy linens, valuable information on china, glass and kitchen ware, utensils and brasses—all these subjects you will find are covered in your clippings.

Cleaning hints for everything in the home get away from us if we don't clip. No book in the world will ever contain the valuable things we have seen and lost. We must clip with discretion, though most of the stuff worth while is collected by writers, who know or go to reliable sources for their information.

May First Dedicated To Children In Nation-Wide Festival Planned To Stimulate Health Activities

A nation-wide demonstration with a purpose which its sponsors anticipate will have an instant appeal to the minds and hearts of all America is that planned for May Day of this year by the officials of the American Child Health Association.

The day, always associated with childhood in its happiest mood, has been dedicated by the Association as the one most fitting on which to carry on a program devised to awaken the interest of grown-ups in the health and happiness of the nation's boys and girls. President Calvin Coolidge, all the governors, municipal authorities, prominent educators and ministers are united with millions of parents in this great effort to carry before the public the gospel of child health.

Officials of the Association, among whom are many of the successful American authorities on social problems, selected May Day for their program so that the festivals associated with that date might be held, but they have given the day an additional designation of great significance—they call it "take heed day" for the parents. The Association will have considered its task worth while if the interest of the community is aroused in the concerted effort to safeguard the health of the boys and girls of the nation.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our deepest appreciation to our friends for their faithful services and especially to give our highest thanks to them for their noble work in trying to save my house and furniture.

Mrs. J. M. Shoemaker and family.

GO RIGHT AT IT

Freids and neighbors in Albany will show you a way.

Get at the root of the trouble. Rubbing an aching back may relieve it.

But won't cure it if the kidneys are weak.

You must reach the root of it—the kidneys.

Doan's Pills go right at it; Reach the cause; attack the pain. Are recommended by many Albany people.

Ask your neighbor! Mrs. J. P. Doyle, 1420 Fourth Ave. S., Albany, says: "I had a constant backache and hurting across my kidneys. When I stooped to dust, I could hardly straighten again and I became so dizzy, black specks danced before my eyes. My kidneys didn't act as they should and I became so weak, I could hardly get a round the house. I used Doan's Pills and they completely cured me of the complaint in the last six years."

Traditional customs of the Day will have a large part in the observance. The picturesque hanging of May baskets, the colorful pageants and, of course, May Pole dancing are to be included in the programs. The festival spirit will predominate.

Herbert Hoover, president of the American Child Health Association, discussed the May Day program in a call to the grown-ups of America to join in the demonstration.

"We wish to emphasize the fact," he says, "that child health is the personal concern of every citizen of the United States.

In a single sentence the Association's president sums up just what the organization seeks to accomplish by the May Day observance.

"This," he says, "is a problem of maintaining health rather than of curing disease."

Just a year ago, President Hoover published the American Child's Bill of Rights, and it still is the platform on which the Association is carrying on its work. He then declared that there "should be no child in America who:

"Is not born under proper conditions.

"Does not live in hygienic surroundings.

"Ever suffers from malnutrition.

"Does not have an opportunity for outdoor play.

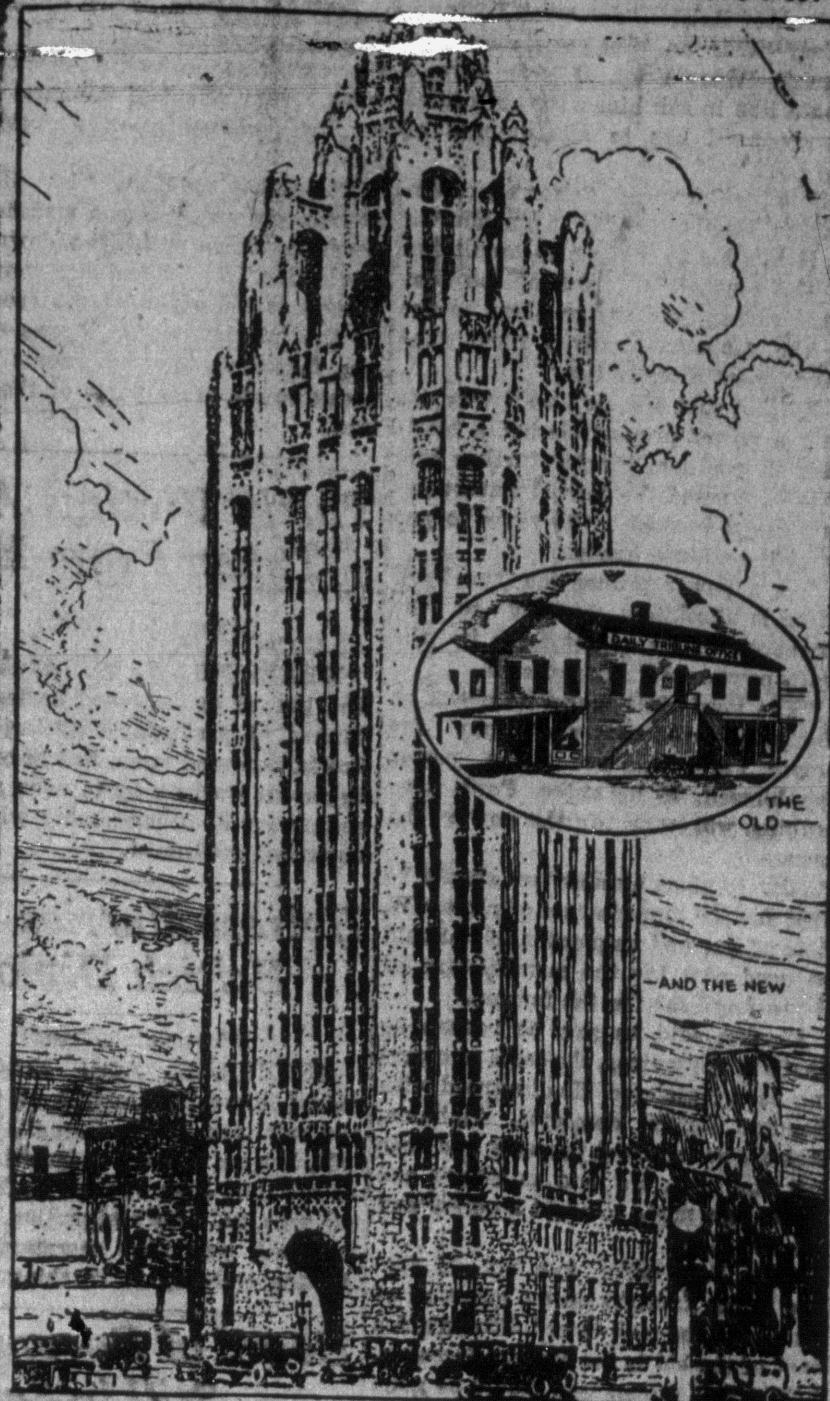

"Does not have prompt and efficient medical inspection and attention.

"Does not receive primary instruction in the elements of hygiene and health."

It is an effort to induce every community to translate this Bill of Rights into living facts that the Association has planned the May Day celebration. Miss Crandall is the organization's associate general executive.

The Association has its headquarters at 370 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

New Monument of Enduring Beauty To Crown Aristocratic Boulevard

Beautiful Michigan Avenue, Chicago's imposing lane of architectural genius, is to be crowned by the most distinctive office building in the world. Work is already under way on the Tribune Tower, which afforded the greatest architectural contest in history, with prizes of $20,000.

On June 10, 1847, when the present roaring metropolis was a village, the first Chicago Tribune was printed on a hand press in a single room. Seventy-five years later to the day, the Tribune announced the architectural contest for the "world's most beautiful office building." Architects in twenty-two states and twenty-three foreign lands competed. 268 designs having been submitted. First prize did not get out of the "birthland of the skyscraper." This high award of $50,000 went to John Mead Howells and Raymond M. Hood, associate architects, New York. The remaining $50,000 was divided among other architects.

Determination of the owners to "adorn with a monument of enduring beauty" the city where the Tribune has prospered, resulted in selection of Indiana Limestone as the building material. Thus the Tribune Tower will harmonize with other striking limestone structures on Michigan Boulevard. These include the new $16,000,000 Straus building, the Chicago Art Institute, the Public Library, the new London Guarantee building and the University club.

NURSE CHAPPELLE SAYS TANLAC BRINGS MOST GRATIFYING RESULTS

Nurse With 15 Years' Experience Urges Use of Tanlac—Tells of Her Mother's Experience With World's Famous Tonic.

"I have direct and personal knowledge of so many cases where Tanlac has restored health and strength and helped weak, rundown people to get on their feet that I know it to be an unusual medicine," is the emphatic manner in which Mrs. M. E. Chappelle Blue Mount and Thomas Ave., Wauwata, Wis., a practical nurse of fifteen years' experience, pays tribute to the famous treatment.

"Time and again I have urged Tanlac's use and it always brings the most gratifying results. My own mother, now eighty years old, took Tanlac five years ago, and it has been her standby ever since. Nothing helps her as Tanlac does and she is as strong an advocate of the medicine as I am. Only recently, mother became generally run-down. Her stomach was disordered, her appetite utterly failed her and she came near having a nervous breakdown. Tanlac gave her a vigorous appetite, corrected all complaints and left her not only well and happy but so strong and active that she looks after the home and visits around, as well. And mother thinks the Tanlac Vegetable Pills are the greatest ever. "In all my long years of experience as a nurse, I have never known the equal of Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills.—Advt.

Governor Pinchot Tells Committee He Wants a Delay

that the government's interests are protected?"

Senator Ralston, democrat, Indiana, asked "Who on this committee represents Henry Ford. If he is here, I would like to ask him what objections Henry Ford has to amendments of the bid?"

Senator Carroway, democrat, of Arkansas, said he favored an amendment to Ford's bid to make non-compliance of the contract a forfeit of the contract rather than the privilege to sue in the Alabama courts, a right the government already has.

Pinchot said Muscle Shoals was not only a power proposition but a fertilizer proposition. Pinchot further said that he favored the federal waterpower act and worked 15 years to put it on the statute books.

"As a power proposition, the Ford offer is absolutely contrary to the Roosevelt policy as set forth in the waterpower act," Pinchot said.

"The Ford offer makes no check on the price consumers must pay for power. Ford could use all the power for himself, if he chose. Ford pays nothing whatever for the power he uses."

"Nitrate plant number two should be kept for the manufacture of nitrate in time of war and unquestionably should be used now for the manufacture of cheap fertilizer for the farmer."

Pinchot said he saw no reason or haste in the matter, the dams not having been completed. He disagreed with Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, that the government property had been left for junk. He said an effort had never been made to adopt a policy and ask for bids.

"The Ford offer does not do justice to the farmers on the question of fertilizer," he maintained. "The nitrate part of the bid is the window dressing. I think this proposition should be gone into seriously with the department of agriculture to decide on a fertilizer policy and then distribute the remaining power over the South."

"Distribution of power should be made over the widest possible area at the lowest practical price to consumers."

CUBAN GUARD IS IN REVOLT TUESDAY

(Associated Press)
HAVANA, Cuba, April 29—Dissatisfaction, long smoldering in Santa Clara province, came to a head today when a detachment of the rural guard revolted and fled from their post near Santa Clara.

Dispatches published by Havana newspapers said the men marched out shouting "down with Zayas, down with re-election." The dispatches were confirmed at the office of the secretary of the interior, where it was said it was feared similar movements might break out in other parts of the province.

Board of Revenue Still in Session

The Morgan County board of revenue, sitting as a board of review on the tax books of county tax officials, remains in session at the court house busily engaged in checking over the assessments made by the tax assessors.

GOOD BISCUITS Are Your Best Food

SCIENTISTS tell us that whole-some properly raised biscuits contain more calories and more nourishment than any other bread. But every one knows that to be healthful and easily digested, biscuits must be carefully made and properly baked.

"Happily my experience has shown that it is almost impossible to make poor biscuits with self-rising flour," writes a housewife of Blythewood, S. C. "My biscuits in the North, made with ordinary flour, were invariably a failure, but I can truthfully say that when I use self-rising flour the reverse is the case. . . . Through a number of years' experience I have found self-rising flour to be all and more than its manufacturers claim it to be. . . . Its convenience and economy in saving both time and labor can hardly be over-estimated."

Because it simplifies the work of baking and practically eliminates failures, self-rising flour is the most economical flour you can use. Aside from this, dietitians and food experts commend its healthful qualities. Next time you cook biscuits try self-rising flour. You'll never regret it!

FOLLOW THESE FIVE RULES For Making Perfect Biscuits with Self-Rising Flour. (1) See that your oven is hot; (2) Always use sweet milk or cold water; (3) Never add baking powder, soda or salt; (4) Use good shortening—lard, vegetable fat or butter; (5) Make soft dough—bake quickly.
